INTRODUCTION

Have you ever had an annoying player that asks for the name of every single NPC in your campaign, even the least important shopkeeper or beggar found along the street? If you did, then you know the feeling of frustration that takes you whenever the players expect you to come out with a nice and well thought name, and you must improvise, often coming out with something very inappropriate.

This short supplement is an essay about ethnic groups and names in the Principalities of Glantri: this big nation is a big pot-pourri of cultures and ethnicities, and in the campaign this must be shown properly.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Names are often one of the weakest spots of any campaign. A well-built campaign can be undermined by silly names, or by names that don't mirror the place where the campaign is set, or the tone of the campaign itself.

There's nothing wrong in calling a character "Billy the Fart", but it may be at least a little embarrassing when the spokesman tells the king that the kingdom has been saved by Cordelia Heaven, Rudo Thunderbolt and Billy the Fart. Most probably, the last one will not be recorded in any history book. Moreover, a character with a very out-of-context name can spoil the fun for everyone else.

Therefore, picking the right name for the characters of an adventure, or campaign, becomes an important (I won't define it vital, though) matter. Players should always consider the DM's suggestions and guidelines to choose a name for their characters.

In this volume, there will be tables to help you pick a name that is appropriate for a character that's living in the Principalities of Glantri, based on his or her ethnicity. These tables can be used both by players and DMs, and all of them present two different results for each score obtained by rolling 1d%.

You can roll the d% to randomly determine the names, or you can just scroll them down and pick the ones you prefer.

ETHNIC TRAITS

Ethnicities will be described in their peculiar traits to give a short overlook of the people from which the character is coming from. This may help you in the choice of the names and surnames.

A total of 13 ethnic groups make up the mosaic of cultures that the Principalities of Glantri are. In the next pages each one is going to be described, and for each one there will be given some guidelines for the choice of names.

Some information about how the names in the tables have been picked may be given as well. If the reader wants to use different names, or to invent his own based on the names in this volume, he may always do that.

DISCLAIMER

Please note that the original material for the world of Mystara was full of similarities with some historic populations that inhabited our world. Therefore, some stereotypical traits of those populations are mirrored in the ethnic descriptions or in the names picked for this volume. This was done so that the reader will immediately have a clear picture of how the ethnic group is, and which names are commonly used in it. If you feel offended by the depiction of any of these ethnic groups, please keep in mind that this work is fictional and any similarities with our world are just functional to the game, and don't mirror the real thoughts of the author.

ETHNICITIES

AALBESE HUMANS

Aalbese humans actually are a mix of different ethnic groups. Their base is made of Thiatian settlers with german-like names, who mixed up after the war with other ethnicities, to promote cooperation and peace-keeping. They mainly live in the Principality of Aalban, but may be present in every big city, where the cultures tend to merge more than in small villages.

The most common ethnicities that make up the Aalbese group are: Alphatian, Thyatian, Flaem, Klantyrean and Boldavian. The other ethnic groups may still be represented, but are minorities. Most of the Aalbese only speak Common Glantrian, but it's not uncommon to find people that is able to speak Alphatian or Thyatian as well.

The choice of the names for Aalbese characters is obviously based on german ones.

AALBESE SURNAMES

Most of the surnames in this table exist in two different forms. The most common is the one that is reported in the table, while the most unusual one has the prefix Von or Von Der. For example:

Ackermann - Von Ackermann

Egli - Von Der Egli

Oldenberg - Von Oldenberg

Moreover, there also exist surnames that are composed by two other surnames, merged. These are usually made of quite short ones, otherwise the resulting surname would be too long. For example:

Buren + Burg = Burenburg

Alder + Graf = Aldergraf

Sometimes, these composed surnames mirror the two surnames of mother and father, especially for nobles who want to underline their ancestral lineage.

ETHNICITIES

ALPHATIAN HUMANS

Alphatian humans in the Principalities of Glantri only belong to the true Alphatian ethnicity. These are mostly descendants of the Alphatian forces that followed Halzunthram during the Alphatian occupation. Their number is not big, and they are mostly living in the Pricipality of Blackhill and nearby. Some of them also live in Aalban, and mixed up with other ethnic groups. They can be found in big cities, as well, but they are often discriminated out of their lands.

Alphatians have very pale complexion, almost pure white, and normally have black hair with blue shades. However, it is not uncommon for them to have blue hair, or even more peculiar colours like green and purple. Other rare hair colours among them are fiery red and bright white, usually associated with the families of the Tobren Red and Tobren White respectively.

The eyes of the Alphatians normally match their hair colour, but may be brighter. Alphatians with black hair often have black or blue eyes. Rare eye colours among the Alphatians include yellow and pink.

Alphatians normally speak Alphatian, alongside with Common Glantrian.

ABOUT ALPHATIAN NAMES

The creators of D&D, back in the day, took names from real places and characters to give them to places and characters in the modules and gazetteers. I did the same for most of the ethnicities in this volume, but for Alphatians I was at a struggle, because they are not evidently based on any real culture. However, due to their very magical background, and to stick with this choice, I decided to approach the Alphatian names in the following way.

I mostly picked names from fantasy videogames and books, and added some names that matched them nicely. For people's names, to give them an exotic and magical flavour, I also added names taken from ancient Greek mythology and from other sources.

ALPHATIAN SURNAMES

Apparently, in the Empire of Alphatia the surnames are not being used. This should mirror the Alphatian habit to mate without a proper marriage, and therefore a complete freedom to have children without giving them a surname to carry along.

How ever, it sounds very dumb for an Empire that has many millions of citizens and that embraces many different cultures not to have surnames. Moreover, in conflict with the description of Alphatia there is the description of the Alphatians in Glantri, who have marriages and surnames.

To keep things easy, I added surnames to Alphatian characters in Alphatia as well, but it is obvious that, at least in Glantri, Alphatians must have sunames like every other character.

It may be discussed whether the Alphatians in Alphatia get the surname of the father or the mother, because either solution may produce weird situations of brothers that have different surnames. How ever, in Glantri I opted for a very common transmission of the surname of the father, like every other ethnicity.

ETHNICITIES

AVEROIGNESE HUMANS

This ethnicity is made of the descendants of the people that came to the valleys of the Principalities following the powerful D'Amberville family. They may have any common hair and eyes colour, and have a quite average white complexion. Their stature is average as well, and they tend to be quite elegant in the way they dress and comb their hair. Most of them still speak Averoignese, alongside the Common Glantrian.

Averoignese people is based on the French population of the renaissance, and their names are common French names.

BELCADIZ ELVES

Belcadiz elves are very clearly based on spanish characters like Zorro and Don Quichote. It is often said that they are some of the weirdest elves around, and that they have more similarities to humans than they have to most of the other elven clans.

Belcadiz elves are short, with black hair, usually curly, and dark eyes. The men wear mustaches. Belcadiz elves wear very elegant and brightly coloured clothes, and tend to be aggressive, passionate and easy to upset.

Obviously, their names are spanish. The common Belcadiz elves inherit the surname of the father, like everyone else, but in the family of the Princes it is the Belcadiz surname that always prevails. The women that get married normally acquire the surname of the husband, and add to that their maiden surname dividing them with a "y". For example, Lucia Valdez that marries Pedro Sanchez becomes Lucia Sanchez y Valdez. In the same fashion, Dona Carnelia De Belcadiz, marrying Don Marco De Fedorias became Dona Carnelia De Fedorias y Belcadiz.

BELCADIZ HUMANS

Belcadiz humans are humans of the hispani population, originally from the Savage Coast area, that acquired from the Belcadiz clan their uses and style. They followed the Belcadiz in their travel to Glantri and settled in the Principality of Belcadiz with the elves. They are very similar to the Belcadiz elves, aesthetically, but they are often taller and don't have pointy ears. Most of them have some Belcadiz elf among their ancestors.

Belcadiz humans have the same kind of names and surnames as Belcadiz elves.

BOLDAVIAN HUMANS

Boldavians originally were a group of Traldarans from Karamikos that moved to the valley of Dol Anur river long time ago. However, they mixed up with the Flaem in their area, and now they have very peculiar traits. They have mostly black hair and light eyes, even if any colour of eyes is possible. Some of them, which have Flaem ancestors, have blonde hair. They are usually quite tall, and have big beak-like noses and square faces. Their complexion is tanned, and they tend to wear elegant and dark clothes, with the men often wearing jackets and neckties and the women usually wearing very long gowns.

The society of the Boldavians in the Principalities is clearly inspired by transilvanians, therefore their names are romanian names, and the surnames follow suit.

EREWAN ELVES

Erewan elves are some of the most stereotypical elves around: they are tall, slim, wear natural colours, live in the woods, mostly have blonde hair and green eyes and a pale white complexion. They prefer to live isolated from humans, and to build their strongholds on trees. However, in the centuries spent in the Principalities they became more accustomed to the humans and even mixed up with Belcadiz elves.

For these reasons, now it is quite easy to find in the Erewan settlements elves that don't mirror the stereotype exactly, with darker colours of hair and eyes, and sometimes even a darker skin tone.

For the choice of Erewan names, I decided to stick to the Fantasy tradition of elves from the novels of JRR Tolkien and other very elven names built accordingly.

ETHENGARIAN HUMANS

Ethengarian humans are inspired to the mongolians of the age of the Khans: they are short, with golden complexion, almond-shaped eyes, which are pitch black, like their hair. They have straight and shiny hair, that the women comb with researched styles, and the men cut shorter when they don't even shave at the top of the head or on the forehead. They wear long robes, often with soft trousers underneath, for both men and women. The rich ones wear colorful clothes and use jewels, mostly made of jade, while the poor ones wear simple clothes in natural colours.

They normally wear sandals in the warm season and fur boots and fur cloaks in the cold season. The men often have long and well-trimmed mustache, and wear hats that define their social status.

NOTE ABOUT ETHENGARIAN NAMES AND SURNAMES

Ethengarians are based on ancient mongolians. This was possibly the hardest list to compile, and some of the names on the list may be misspelled or make no sense in a fantasy setting. I don't know, because I am not an expert in mongolian language. I hope nobody gets offended for my poor knowledge. On my side, I tried to do my best.

Please note that some names may appear on both the male and female lists, because mongolian has a number of "unisex" names that can be used for men and women indifferently.

FLAEM HUMANS

The biggest and most widely spread ethnicity of the Principalities is made of Flaem humans: they are the descendants of the ancient Cypri, who used to live on the planet Alphatia two thousand years ago. Their skin is tanned and their hair is red, and sometimes blonde. They have green eyes, mostly, but they can have any colour of eyes. They are tall and usually well built, with a strong constitution.

The women tend to have a lighter complexion, and sometimes they have freckles, which are quite common among the teenagers of both genders.

They wear clothes in warm colours, usually made of wool or fur, and also wear fur boots and hats, especially in winter. They drink a lot of alcohol, too.

Flaem people is loosely based on the dutch population, and their names and surnames mirror that origin.

KLANTYREAN HUMANS

Klantlyreans come from a world that is expressly similar to ancient Scotland. They are tall, often have light coloured hair and eyes, and they tend to have a very pale complexion. In summer, most of them develop freckles for this reason. Both men and women often keep their hair long. The men wear a kilt with the colours of their family's Tartan.

Klantlyrean names and surnames are typically Scottish ones. However, to make them more uniform and to avoid trouble due to differently spelled surnames that sound exactly the same, in the Principalities of Glantri all of the Klantlyrean names that are built with a "Mc" have a space between Mc and the surname, and the first letter of the surname is always a capital letter.

For example:

Mc Gregor, and not McGregor or Mcgregor

ETHNICITIES

MORNEI GYPSIES

Mornei Gypsies are a very particular ethnicity which is extremely mixed up: it is made of descendants of Belcadiz elves, Ethengarians and Traldarans from Karameikos. The resulting ethnicity is a pot-pourri of all of these ethnicities all mixed up together.

Mornei gypsies have tanned complexion, and are of average stature and body build. They have pitch black hair, mostly curly, but may have any colour of eyes. Their eye's shape is like the Ethengarians' one, very long and thin, and their ears are slightly pointy, revealing their elven ancestors. They use a lot of jewelry, both men and women, and tend to take great care of their look and their clothes.

Mornei gypsies are travelers and never stay for too long in the same area.

The names of the Mornei gypsies are typical Boldavian names, because the biggest ethnic group that generated them was the traldarans. However, they are not inspired by only one ethnicity in the real world, but by a more all-round romantic gypsy stereotype.

NAGPAS

Nagpas are a weird race of monsters that sometimes live among men, and found a place where they can live almost peacefully in the Principalities.

They look like humanoids with a weak and old-looking body, topped with a head of vulture. They are quite scary for people who is not used to have them around, and are often speaking in a very low-pitched voice.

They don't have families, and don't have surnames. They don't even have parents, therefore they are not given a name, but usually pick it themselves and may even change it from time to time. They often add to their name an adjective that describes them in frightening or impressive ways, like Kurama the Magnificent, Aakmar Elfslayer or something like that.

Nagpas don't even have genders, therefore they may pick literally whatever name they prefer. The list in this page gives you some ideas of names that the Nagpas find appropriate for them, but any scary-sounding name taken by any language may appeal them and may be picked.

Please note that, even if a Nagpa may want to change the name when he finds a new one that he thinks is more appropriate, in the Principalities this usually means that he needs to undergo a lot of bureaucracy.

THYATIAN HUMANS

Thyatian humans are some of the most variegated ethnicities in the world of Mystara. They are mixed up races and cultures, but in the end their main traits are an average stature, complexion and build, mainly dark hair and hazel or black eyes. They wear simple and elegant clothes, without too many decorations and have a quite martial organization in their society.

In the Principalities, the Thyatian families that settled the valley of the Red River are inspired to a mix-up of Italian backgrounds, from ancient Roman, to Venetian, to the Borgia family. Therefore, their names are typically Italian, like the names of their settlements.
